Financing sustainable transitions
A comprehensive strategy empowering the shift to a green economy

Sustainability at the core
• ING recognises its role in creating a healthy and sustainable world by means of the choices we make in lending, investing and the services we offer to customers

Sustainability Direction
• ING launched its Sustainability Direction in 2014 which puts central our support of business clients in making the transition to a healthy and sustainable world

Sustainable Finance
• In our Sustainable Finance Programme we identify and help our corporate customers in making the transition towards more sustainability and sustainable business

Sustainable Transitions Financed
• Sustainable Transitions Financed (STF) is our way of reporting our financing of clients that are environmental trend setters in their sectors and projects that provide sustainable solutions

Sustainable Transitions Financed – our inclusive approach
• Sustainable Finance covers all business areas of Commercial Banking
• The identification of sustainable business is integrated into ING Commercial Banking’s commercial process, to the extent that we have implemented a score card
• The approach covers all industry lending transactions, where we look for projects, assets and clients that support transitions to a healthy and sustainable world such as renewable energy, green buildings, public transport and waste management
• Every six months we report our committed financing of sustainable clients as Sustainable Transitions Financed
• At 1H 2015 our STF amounted to nearly €21bn, of which €3.4bn financing of sustainable projects and assets (see graph below)

Sustainable projects financed 2013-1H 2015

ING Bank’s Green Bond issuance rationale
Sustainable performance accelerated through capital markets

The Green Bond Framework has been developed to enable increased acceleration of Sustainable Transitions
- Our approach to sustainability is defined by identifying broadly corporate activity and sectors that support the transitions to a sustainable world
- Sustainable transitions are happening across all sectors where ING is active and the Green bond framework is reflective of this sector wide view

ING has the ambition to enter the Green Bond market to accelerate the funding of ING’s overall sustainability strategy
- With this Green bond, we align the commercial activities of ING’s Commercial Banking with our corporate funding
- This issue offers investors further insight into our sustainability strategy and programme, enhancing our transparency and stakeholder engagement

Our inclusive and integrated sustainability approach towards Sustainable Transitions Financed
- At 1H 2015 our Sustainable Transitions Financed amounted to nearly €21bn, of which €3.4bn financed sustainable projects and assets
- Matching the sustainable asset generation from our lending teams with green funding from investors will strengthen our inclusive and sector-wide approach

Disclosure and transparency on sustainable progress and environmental added value
- ING intends to develop a comprehensive impact measurement metric for its Green Bond reporting
- Among others, we will be looking into annual generation by financed renewable energy projects and energy efficiency or relative energy use of green buildings
